85388 Market Snapshot

Single Family Detached · West Valley, Phoenix

AS OF AUG 1, 2026
Prepared for Homeowners

This market has shifted from firmly seller-favored to something more balanced — and the last quarter shows that shift picking up speed. Here's what that means if you're planning to sell your home in this zip code.

MONTHS OF SUPPLY	DAYS ON MARKET	SALE-TO-LIST	MEDIAN PRICE
4.2	85	98.3%	$460K
Balanced market	↑ from 63 last year	↓ from 99.1% last year	↓ 2.1% year-over-year

WHAT'S HAPPENING

— Inventory is building: 229 active listings today, up from 220 a month ago and 208 last quarter — more competition for your home than there's been in a while.

— Homes are taking longer to sell: 85 days on market for sold homes, up sharply from 55 last month and 63 a year ago.

— Months of supply sits at 4.2 — the line between a seller's market and a balanced one. The trend the last quarter (3.5 → 4.2) is moving toward buyers.

— Appreciation has cooled: annual price-per-square-foot growth is down to 1.2%, from 2.8% a year ago, and the median sale price is actually down 2.1% year-over-year.

— Sellers are giving up a bit more ground: homes are closing at 98.27% of list price, the lowest point on record here, down from 99.08% a year ago.

WHERE THE MARKET IS STILL SOLID

— Listing success rate is up to 69.4%, better than 64.3% both last month and last year — well-positioned listings are still finding buyers.

— Annual dollar volume is at its highest point on this table: $269M, so real demand and real dollars are still moving through this zip code.

— Days on market for active listings actually improved slightly compared to a year ago, and supply is still tighter than it was two years ago.

WHAT THIS MEANS FOR YOU

— Pricing accuracy matters more than it did a year ago. An overpriced listing will sit — and sitting is what erodes your negotiating power.

— Plan for time, not speed. 85 days is closer to the current norm here than the 55–63 days you may remember from recent history.

— Expect some negotiation. Buyers have more options and more patience right now than they did a year or two ago.

— This is a healthy market, not a distressed one — strong sales volume and a solid closing rate mean a well-priced, well-presented home will still sell.

Questions about what this means for your specific home and timeline? Let's talk through your options.

Selling Your Home in 85338

What the market is telling sellers right now, in plain English
West Valley Phoenix | Single-family homes | Data as of October 13, 2026

The short version

Your home can sell, and homes are selling faster than they were a year ago. Buyers are active and prices are holding steady.
But the market is more crowded than it was this summer, and prices are not rising. That means the right price and a home that shows well will decide how quickly you sell.

56 days	38 days	98.6%	$460,000
typical time on market for homes that sold (68 days a year ago)	typical wait to get a first contract on a listing	of asking price received on average	median sale price over the past year (up 0.8% from last year)

What this means for you

1. Buyers are out there
   Homes under contract are up 20% over last year (90 vs. 75), and homes that sell are spending fewer days on the market (56 vs. 68). Across the ZIP, 72.6% of listings end in a sale, up from 66.7% a year ago.
2. You are competing with more homes
   There are 523 homes for sale, up from 471 last month and 500 a year ago. Supply has climbed from 3.5 months in July to 4.7 now. Buyers have more choices, so they compare, and they notice when a home is overpriced.
3. Do not count on rising prices to help you
   The median sale price is up just 0.8% from last year, and the typical price per square foot is down 0.5%. The market will not bail out a price that is too high, so price your home to where homes are actually selling.
4. Asking prices run ahead of what homes sell for
   Homes now on the market are asking about $231 per square foot, while homes that closed this past month sold for about $223. Homes priced at the high end of that gap are the ones most likely to sit.
5. Some deals fall apart
   About 16% of contracts (roughly 1 in 6) do not make it to closing. A buyer who is well qualified, and a home that is priced and prepared well from the start, help protect you.

Your game plan if you need to sell

1. Price to what has sold, not what is listed
   A fresh listing gets its best attention in the first couple of weeks. Setting the price from recent sales near you, rather than from neighbors' asking prices, gives you the strongest start.
2. Be completely ready before you list
   Finish repairs, declutter, deep clean, and get professional photos done before the home goes live. With more homes to choose from, buyers move on quickly from listings that do not show well.

3	Plan your timeline backwards from your deadline A typical home takes about 5 to 6 weeks to get a first contract and about 2 months on the market overall (56 days), and the closing period comes after that. If you have a firm date, build in that cushion.
4	Choose your buyer carefully With 1 in 6 contracts falling through, a strong offer means more than a high number. Look at the buyer's financing, their down payment, and how flexible they are on timing.
5	Stay flexible on terms if time matters If your timeline is tight, a flexible closing date, a reasonable response to repair requests, or help with buyer costs can matter as much as the price itself.
6	Waiting is not a sure win Prices have been flat, and the pace of new listings picks up in the spring, so waiting does not guarantee a better result. If you need to sell, a well-priced home today is usually a stronger position than hoping for a different market later.

How the market has shifted

Measure	Today	Last month	Last year	What it means for you
Homes for sale (active)	523	471	500	More competition for your buyer
Months of supply	4.7	4.0	4.2	Market has loosened from summer
Homes under contract (pending)	90	111	75	Buyers are active, up 20% over last year
Median days on market (sold)	56	62	68	Homes are selling faster than a year ago
Sold price vs. asking	98.62%	98.74%	98.65%	Well-priced homes still get near full price
Listings that end in a sale	72.6%	71.6%	66.7%	More listings are succeeding than last year
Contracts that fall through	16.3%	16.3%	16.2%	About 1 in 6 deals does not close

Months of supply: how long it would take to sell every home now on the market

A market near 4 to 6 months of supply is commonly considered balanced. We are at 4.7: not a hot seller's market like some months in the past, and not a buyer's market either.

Your best next step

These numbers describe the whole 85338 ZIP code. Your price depends on your home's size, condition, location, and the sales closest to you. Ask for a custom price analysis built from recent comparable sales, so your listing price is based on your home and not on a ZIP-wide average.

Figures cover all single-family detached homes in 85338 (median sale price $460,000); higher-priced homes can behave differently. This guide is general market information, not an appraisal or a guarantee of any price or timeline.
